AMUSEMENTS.

Lyric Theatre — "California Girl," week beginning tonight.

Utahna Park Theatre — "Parisian Princess."

Coming Attractions.

Grand Theatre—"A New York Girl," week beginning September 4.

Salt Lake Theatre—"Jolly Musketier," Sept. 16-20.

Manager Egan has opened up his new play house, the Lyric, to a rush of business and a bulging box-office. The vigorous campaign which has been inaugurated shows the management to be wide awake and aggressive all along the firing line. Those of us who have been to the new house—and among the Johnnies none failed—were initiated into something a little beyond the usual. That is, not the ordinary, as understood by the rustics of the town. To those of us who have already cut our theatrical eye-teeth, the shows at the Lyric are merely a return to conditions as we knew them elsewhere. Were it not for the fact that this is Salt Lake, the Lyric might be Sam T. Jack's theatre in Chicago, or Miner's in New York. The shows are just as gingery and, circumstances considered, just as good as those given in the east. That the class of amusement to be provided from the stage of the Lyric will not appeal with equal force to all tastes, goes without saying. This condition the management fully understands. But, it may be said that the new play and new kind of amusement which the Lyric will provide, has already rallied to its standard those who insist upon having "ale with their cakes." By this, however, it must not be understood that everything seen from the Lyric stage is to be construed as offensive to refined tastes. The management will not incline beyond the limits of decorum, though, of course, Sunday school lessons will not be taught from the stage, nor Bibles given away with each ticket.

It is, however, proposed to give shows where enticing elements are snap and ginger, movement, color and brightness. To those who laugh and the world laughs with them, the Lyric will offer a refuge from the cares which everywhere cross the pathway. There are some people here who are still shocked at seeing female symmetry in rainbow stockings—some who are prudish enough to be horrified at pretty garters and shapely ankles. For such as these the shows at the Lyric are forbidden fruit. The management neither expects nor caters to such patronage. But to all lovers of bright and snappy dialogues, stage pictures of poetic movement and color, catchy music and show girls who add life and beauty to the picture—to these Manager Egan will always extend the glad hand.

"California Girl" will be the attraction for the week starting tonight at the Lyric. Those who saw the "Colonial Belles" know that a good show is coming with the dashing little lady from the Golden state.

Remember, the Lyric box office is open every day and night.

The home opera company is actively rehearsing "The Jolly Musketier." Conductor McClellan, who has just returned from Portland, has attached himself to the baton and is applying the birch over the musical backs of his proteges. The Salt Lake theatre, where the rehearsals are being held, has been converted into an immense aviary, with everywhere a fluttering chorus of nightingales and canaries. The dates of the opera are September 16, 18, 19 and 20.

A movement is on foot to give Harry Horsley, the veteran actor, a benefit. His friends are legion and they should be open-handed.

T. L. Hammer, who has so long been the genial treasurer of the Grand and later its acting manager, has retired from the house. Mr. L. Smiley, who represents the Denver owners of the Grand, will at once assume the management of the pretty Second street establishment. The new manager "is a live one" and thoroughly versed in the art of making a box-office turn tricks. The Grand will open with the Curtis musical company in the sparkling musical comedy, "A New York Girl." By the way, when the Grand opens, there will be an electrical sign display in front of the house that will suggest the front of a Broadway theatre.

The Empire Stock company at the Utahna park theatre is doing a good business with the Parisian Princess.

At the Resorts.

Ah, ha! It will be all over next Monday, Labor day.

Well, hasn't there been a bunch of bathers in the lake this season?

Three hundred dollars in gold is to be given ticket buyers to Saltair on Labor day. Are you lucky—here's your chance.

At Lagoon next Monday, glorified Labor will wrestle with the festive Clam. An old fashioned clam-bake will be given. Enough clams for the millions have been ordered.

Saltair has had about the most successful season in the history of the resort beautiful. Manager Langford is to be congratulated on his enterprise and progressive methods.

Harry Heagren has given the bike fans all that was coming to them. Harry has kept splendid faith with the public.

Iver Lawson is not setting the Vailsburg saucer on fire. But Iver is a fast one just the same.

When "Sammy" leaves the local track this season his money-till will be full of winnings.

America's Oldest Belfry.

The oldest belfry in America is the seven-century-old fir tree, eight feet thick, that forms the spire of St. Peter's church, Tacoma, which is used for the bell of the church.
